5 This application claims the benefit of U. S. Provisional Application entitled "Web Server Architecture", No. 60/156,305, filed September 24, 1999, and U. S. Provisional Application entitled "Web Server Architecture", No. 60/155,711, filed September 24, 1999. This application is also a continuation-in-part of U.S. Patent Application entitled
"Mechanism for Enabling Customized Session Managers to Interact with a Network 10 Server", Serial No. not yet assigned, filed on March 14, 2000. The entire contents of these prior applications are hereby incorporated by reference.

Background

 This invention relates generally to computer systems, and more particularly to a 15 mechanism for enabling session information to be shared across multiple processes.

 On the Internet or World Wide Web, information is generally communicated on a request-response basis. That is, a client (typically running a browser program) submits a service request to a server. The service request may simply ask for a static page (usually in HTML format), or it may request that a particular application or program be executed 20 to generate a return page. In response to the service request, the server performs whatever tasks are necessary to service the request, and provides a response page to the client. This request-response sequence, referred to as a "roundtrip", is carried out for each request.
